

HUNS MAY ASK ABOUT ITALY AT CONGRESS

Question Not Yet Raised By Germans. But It Is Because They Have Not Had Opportunity.

HUN DOCUMENTS APPROVED

Nothing Is Found In Credentials to Causel Discussion—No Meetings Held Since Original Session.

By The Associated Press.

VERSAILLES May 4.—The question of Italian representation at the peace negotiations as far as could be ascertained, has not been raised by the German delegates. Certainly it was not touched upon at the meeting of the inter-allied and German credentials commission here Thursday.

The Germans had this point in mind and according to indications probably would have raised it had the inter-allied representatives at the meeting questioned their right to speak for Germany with Bavaria in rebellion or enjoying semi-independence. However, when M. Tannenbaum instead proposed an exchange of credentials for verification, the Germans were so satisfied that they did not go out of their way to seek trouble.

There has been no meeting of the German and inter-allied commissions, then, but the inter-allied commission met today at the Quai d'Orsay in Paris to prepare a report which will be submitted to the Germans in writing. Henry White represented the United States. It is understood that the inter-allied representatives found nothing to question in the German documents.

The Germans planned a sightseeing excursion for their delegation to Trarion and Lille. Trarion and had requested permission to visit the historic apartments of Madame Maintenon and Marie Antoinette. These necessary permits were not received, however, and the project had to be abandoned. A considerate holiday crowd came from Paris to catch a glimpse of the Germans, but found the barrier arrangements in working order and were constrained to confine their promenades to the far side of the street.

Herr Giesberts and Herr Landsberg, observing a French artist sketching members of the German party at the hotel, then took their hosts this afternoon, went over to him and asked him to make a sketch of them. They posed patiently for the artist and then signed the sketches.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau of the delegation took a short stroll and later remained outside his hotel chatting with the other members of the German delegation.

Air Flight Delayed.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 4.—Harry G. Hawser and Capt. Frederick P. Rayman, the British aviators bound for first hours on a trans-Atlantic flight to the United States, were compelled to postpone their "hop off" again today when meteorological reports from mid-ocean in face of perfect flying conditions here once more showed adverse winds and weather far afield.

ALBERTINA RASCH ASTONISHES, CHARMS AND DELIGHTS TULSA WITH HER WONDERFUL ART

Famous Danseuse Wins Ovation From Empress Audiences With Her Incomparable Grace—Beautiful Ballet, Wonderfully Trained, Also Given Hearty Reception—Wyatt's Lads and Lassies Are Also Greeted Enthusiastically.

Albertina Rasch, Albertina Rasch, with your air form, your supple grace, full of life and poetry—your charm and dash.

Tulsa loves you. Tulsa adores you.

For never has she seen dancer like—Albertina Rasch!

This may not be good poetry or even charm, but it is exuberant with truth, for Tulsa sat up, astonished, and was delighted, and charmed when it saw Albertina Rasch at the Empress theater yesterday. It was unanimously agreed that never, with a grand opera company or any other company, has Tulsa seen such a beautiful dancing as Albertina Rasch has brought to this city.

The could muster all the complimentary adjectives Mr. Webster has supplied, but in behalf of Miss Rasch and her use would not be exaggeration. She is at once the most brilliant dancer this city has ever seen. She is superb; she is glorious. She is perfection—the last word in the dancing art. Never have we seen such rhythmic grace, such poetry of movement, such magnetism.

Of course, one expected much from a woman of Miss Rasch's reputation. But her dancing was far beyond all expectations. It was enchantingly beautiful.

As the ballet is quite as brilliant in its way as the star herself. The young women, beautiful of face and form, fairies dancing like angels—indeed with the rare grace attributed to angels. It is just to the young

Dutch Make Feeble Attempts to Imitate American "Snap"

How the people of Holland regard our American soldiers is told in an article written by a citizen of Holland, which came into the possession of Corporal Howard F. Stover of the American Military Supply Depot at Rotterdam and sent by him to his mother, Mrs. H. F. Tennant, 192 South Xanpus (Written by a Dutch reporter for a Dutch paper).

There they are motorizing through our city, parading with a quick marching step through our streets, those 250 American soldiers, this being the number who are our guests for a while, giving Rotterdam a little taste of real America.

We paid them a visit at their barracks and offices. They have an office at Louvenhaven being one of the main offices. Every moment of the day soldiers and officers are going in and out and it seems like a department store. The officer division is different, each division and every department has its special line of duty to be short like a business house. Different signs on the doors indicate the department, so it is very easy to find a certain branch of the service. Private offices for officers can't be found in the American army, but if you like to visit the American village on the left side of the Maashaven, which is surrounded by a wire fence, you will find the commanding officer of the village and we walked all over the place and buildings addressing several officers finally we succeeded in finding an officer who wrote the commanding officer's name on a card, Capt. Billings, telling us that he would be the man who would be good enough to show us around. We took the Ferry "Heen & Weer" (versus) together with some Sammies, big good looking fellows, who did not care what was going on and looked at Rotterdam as a father looks at his child, a kind of protecting air. They feel proud and happy and pity us poor Rotterdammers that we were not born by God's Grace in God's country, where the Statue of Liberty speaks for itself, for Liberty and Democracy. We had a hard time to keep pace with them as they walked to camp, poor reporter had to trot. We better look out for our pavement as they are sure to damage same when passing between Binnenveld and Maashaven on the open ground near Van Thomassen's Harbor industry. You will find there, Sammies home and really is their home. At the gate was a big fellow and no one passes without his consent he is the boss.

Capt. Billings we found him to be a fine gentleman, who offered himself right away to show us the place. We interviewed him.

"How long are you going to stay here?"

"I don't know, maybe two months, maybe as long as the army stays in Germany."

"It is true that there are plans to have this depot in Antwerp?"

"Don't know. For the present we are here."

However, it did not look as if they had made plans to move, not at all to us. They were still building and improving the barracks and they have space enough to build twice as much. There were 11 buildings, we counted, 30 ft. long and low but very comfortable and solid.

GAVE "DOUBLE CROSS" TO BELGIANS AT PARIS

Belgians Are Far from Satisfied With Decision of Paris Peace Conference.

They were built by a Dutch firm from American plans. Our general was a big blond fellow, who told us all about the buildings in a real American way that will say, explained it clear and short and was ready to show to something else. We saw fine sleeping places clean rooms with big stoves and a nice fire in each, iron beds with mattresses and pillows, fine women blankets showed American prosperity, the old khaki uniforms worn by the soldiers which look to be made for a lifetime.

They had made much work of the mess hall, big American stoves were spotted by us three cooks were preparing their dinner. Nothing was lacking. We saw them prepare meat, potatoes which were cut to be fried. There was plenty of fine white bread and no lack of food. We saw butter on the table. Everything looked clean. These soldiers are treated as gentlemen and they can really look forward with pleasure to their dinner.

The washroom, dandy cold and warm water, douches, showers, and all conveniences a person would like after a day's work.

The infirmary next. Twenty beds with white sheets, everything first rate. A medical officer with well trained personnel are taking care of the sick. But we did not find any sick looking boy under the Sammies, maybe one or two may be treated for overeating.

The pharmacy and operating rooms are in the same building with plenty of supplies outside you find a disinfecting machine for the purpose of disinfecting clothes and material from men arriving from the front if necessary.

The last building will be the X. M. C. A. the well known recreation room for the soldiers, where it will be possible for them to spend a pleasant evening.

For the motor cars and trucks with a repair shop and personnel whose special duty it is to look after the cars and trucks.

This whole camp has been erected in no time, can be used for years and can be broken off in a short time. Best American style.

The Rotterdams who have a reputation for being "snappy" are only poor imitations compared with the Americans and must give them credit for what they achieved in such a short time.
